

You can directly open the py file house.py, then the result included the mean_squared_error of each regression model.

If you want to reproduce the results after running all of the code, you can input two parameters, one is year sold and the other is lot area, then you can obtain the prediction of house price.